Builder Recommendation

Our experience with Jon Yorgason was terrific! My husband and I were looking to move from Eagle, a bit closer to family and I had spent a couple of months going through subdivisions, open houses, ect. I had found a house that I was very interested in and went with our Realtor to view. As we were going through the house, discussing likes and dislikes we heard someone else come in. Unbeknown to either myself or my Realtor at the time, Jon had stopped by the check in this particular property. Upon learning that he was in fact the builder of the home, we began discussing the possibility of small changes which grew into a conversation about what I really liked. Jon suggested we view the home just down the street, another one of his properties that he felt might be almost exactly what I was looking for. Boy was he right! I walked in and new it was what my husband and I had been looking for. This was in December of 2006 and we moved in the end of January 2007. We love our home and recommend Jon highly! Crystal & Troy

Why should your builder be recognized for Construction Excellence

J. Edward Home should absolutely be recognized for construction excellence. We have been in our home for almost 2 years and I can count on one hand the number of times I have contacted Jon with a concern. Every time I called Jon, he returned my call the same day, and if there was something that needed taken care of Jon had it done within the same week at the convenience of my schedule. Let me further state an example of a 'concern/repair'. I had a toilet handle that would stick, we also had an outlet that was not working properly, both of these so very minor situations were corrected within a few days of Jon becoming aware of the concern. We have never had any major issues with the house. It is built very sound, which also tells me Jon only hires the best sub-contractors. I have had several friends over the years talk about the horrors they went through in building a home. Although, my husband and I did not build our home from the ground up, it was brand new when we moved in, and therefore any 'quirks' that it may have had were up to us to find. Which we did not. I have and will continue to recommend J. Edward Homes and Jon Yorgeson to both friend and family. He builds not only a functional home with a ton of storage (which was something I was have an incredibly difficult time finding!)but beautiful as well.

Is your home Energy Star, NAHB Green or LEED Certified?

Yes. Energy Star

What is the best feature or element of your home?

It has no hard wood and all tile!

Where is the best place to shop for home decor?

Tell us about your community.

Settler's Bridge. We selected this subdivision because of the amenities as well as being closer to town but still feeling like we had a little bit of space. The homes in Settler's Bridge are pretty close together, however, Jon was very wise in choosing the lots he did. Our lot faces a lot behind us that is about acre or so, so although the neighbors on either side are (and will be) close, because we don't have anyone close behind our home it feels a bit more open.
